The Valentina Program

My routine, my rules. Twelve weeks, four training days a week. This is structure — the same structure I post, day by day. Train at your level, rest when the plan says rest, and add weight only when the rules below say so.

The weekly split

Day	Focus
Day 1	Glutes & legs — heavy
Day 2	Upper — push (chest, shoulders, triceps)
Day 3	Glutes & hamstrings — volume
Day 4	Upper — pull (back, biceps) + core
Days 5–7	Rest, walk, prep Sunday

Progression rules

- Weeks 1–4 (Base): learn the movements. Sets of 3, reps as written, weight you can finish with 2 good reps left.
- Weeks 5–8 (Build): add a 4th set to the first two movements of each day. Same weights until the top of the rep range is easy twice in a row — then add the smallest weight step.
- Weeks 9–12 (Peak): first movement of each day goes to 5 sets. Last week, take the final set of each movement to one rep short of failure — never past form.
- Any sharp pain: stop that movement for the day. Form breaking: the set is over. Those are the rules.

The meal framework

High protein at every meal — a palm-and-a-half portion. Prep Sunday: two proteins, two carbs, three vegetables, done in ninety minutes. Eat like you train: simple, repeated, consistent. This is a framework, not a diet prescription — your body, your doctor, your call.
